Funeral Services For Mrs. Parley Meldrum

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. W. P. Meldrum, who passed away early last Friday morning, were held in the 2nd Ward Church on Sunday at 2:30 p.m. with Bishop L. L. Palmer in charge. The main hall and the rotunda were packed with friends of the families, who had gathered to show their respect to the deceased and family, and the lovely floral offerings were a silent tribute to the love and esteem in which she was held. Mourners, who were present from Barnwell, Lethbridge, Hill Spring and points between, especially Raymond and Magrath, filled one side of the hall half way back.

Jos. McLean conducted the Choir, with Mrs. Emma Dahl at the organ, and hymns by the Choir were "Sometime We'll Understand," and "I Need Thee Every Hour." Jos. McLean sang "Farewell to Thee," a favorite of deceased, and a ladies quartette sang "Crossing The Bar." The invocation was by Pres. Heber F. Allen, the benediction by Pres. T. Geo. Wood, and the grave was dedicated by Elder Jas. S. Andersen.

Speakers, friends of the family of many years standing were Pres. M. T. King, and Elders Jas. H. Walker and J. W. Evans, both former bishops of the Raymond 2nd Ward. All offered words of comfort and consolation to the bereaved and spoke of the glorious promises of the resurrection which to members of the L.D.S. Church took away a great deal of the sharpness of the sting of death. All spoke in highest terms of the willingness of deceased and her husband to render service, and Bishop Walker stated that in the erection of the 2nd Ward Chapel, Parley Meldrum was one who was always on hand to assist, and that in everthing asked of members of the Ward he and his wife were ready and willing to do more than their share. Pres. King stressed the fact that as death was sure, but none of us knew when it would come, that we should all have a philosophy of life that would prepare us in some degree for death. Every person has their Gethsemane, and happy indeed is the man whose philosophy and manner of life enables him to meet death without becoming discouraged despondent and bitter because of it. Elder J. W. Evans spoke of the progenitors, of deceased and said that the Fairbanks, Hawkins and Meldrum families were amongst the earliest pioneers of this district, where they had been leaders in every move to build up the growing community. Farther back the progenitors of these families had been amongst the early pioneers of Salt Lake Valley and had worked there to conquer the desert and make it blossom as the rose.

Pall bearers were Harry, Hardy and Paul Fairbanks, Geo. Jr. and Johnny Heggie and Veri Meldrum. A very large cortege followed the remains to the cemetery where interment was made with Christensen Bros. in charge.

Nephi Allen, who has spent the summer and fall on the farm is assisting in the Mercantile Store at the present time in the Dry Goods department.

NEWS NOTES

Mrs. Orpha Blackmore of Cardston was visiting relatives in Raymond this week.

N. L. Atwood of Jaffray, B. C. was a business visitor in Raymond over the week-end.

Lloyd McBride returned to training at Red Deer the end of the week after spending a short leave here with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Parley McBride and other relatives.

The Mercantile has installed twelve lovely fluorescent lights in the Dry Goods Department in the last ten days, and this department is certainly "well lit up" now.

A Barn Dance was held at the new Mental Hospital Barn on Wednesday night and a most enjoyable time is reported by all who attended.

Lorraine Smith who works near Billings, Mon., has spent the past week in Raymond on business for his employer. He has enjoyed the visit with his folks and the opportunity to have had of shaking hands with friends again.

A Hallowe'en Dance was held in the Opera House Friday night for both of the Raymond wards. This was a budget party and a large crowd of dancers were in attendance. A Junior Dance was held from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Could we have a blood clinic in Raymond? It has been talked about several times, but never passed that stage. It seems that now, while there is a need and something really worthwhile could be accomplished, would be a good time to do it. It would be a good project for some organization, and it would not hurt any of us.

Lions Club Meets

The regular meeting of the Raymond Lions Club was held in the Sugar Bowl Monday November 3rd. The meeting was opened by singing "O'Canada" and prayer by Lion O. H. Snow with 34 members present.

Community singing was enjoyed. Lion Rulon Dahl then gave a talk on "Armistice". Lion Arthur Jensen was reported to have entered the Galt Hospital for an operation and it was moved that a suitable remembrance be sent him.

The Lions Club and the Raymond Athletic Association are sponsoring another Carnival on November 26 and 27 and the Lions Club decided to donate a Bicycle as a Junior Prize. The different Committees were then notified of their duties for the coming Carnival.

Lion V. Heggie then asked for volunteers to finish the good work that had already been done at the Skating Rink. Lion H. Witbeck announced that arrangements for the Charter Night program December 3rd were progressing.

The draw for the War Savings Certificates was then made. Lions J. Judd and Dean Rolfson being the lucky winners. The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

No Peace With Hitler Carnival Coming End Of This Month

(Editorial from the New York Times, Oct. 5th, 1941)

At last we have an answer to the riddle of why Germany did not follow up her great victories on the Continent of Europe with an attempt to end the war quickly by invading the British Isles when Great Britain was still staggered by the French collapse and the loss of guns and tanks at Dunkerque. It may be that Hitler thought at first that, with France out of the war, the British would surrender without a fight; but before many weeks had passed he knew better. He knew, too, that Great Britain never would be weaker than she was in the Summer of 1940. Yet he did not strike even then.

Last week Hitler provided a clue to the mystery of what had stayed his hand. As long ago as September, 1940, he told his people, he realized that a showdown with Russia was inevitable and presumably began moving his divisions from the Channel ports, and the cities behind them, to his eastern frontier. From September until June of this year, he confessed, he harbored in his heart the scheme to pounce upon Russia; yet he held his tongue in order not to put his intended victim on her guard. In all the Fuehrer said he made only one mistake, and that was in not realizing "how gigantic" were the preparations the Russians were making on their side of the frontier.

For outright cynicism and cold-blooded hypocrisy it would be hard to equal this latest public utterance, the first by Hitler since last May 30th. In it he disclosed, with his usual complete unconcern for honor, the reason why he who is so ready to make war cannot make peace; why his armies can overrun a Continental, yet cannot conquer a single country. It is because he has shown by word and deed that he cannot be trusted by friend or foe. With the example of Europe before them it is astounding that any American still harbors the notion that there is the slightest chance of doing business with a victorious Hitler on any but Nazi terms.

Great Britain and France first tried to appease him, but when they could surrender no more they chose to stand and fight. France fell by the wayside and sought a truce which has not brought peace. Italy under Mussolini made the fatal error, against which Machiavelli warned, of making a compact with a stronger prince, and now faces the prospect of eternal vassalage to Nazi Germany if Hitler wins. Other countries sought refuge in neutrality, only to be attacked when it suited Hitler's purpose to invade them. Russia, practicing her own brand of appeasement, entered into an unholy alliance with Nazi Germany, but did not escape the fate of bolder nations.

The lesson is clear. There can be no security, no peace in Europe, no health in the world until Hitler and his Nazi creed—that military might is justification and any treachery, any perfidy and any crime—are destroyed and banished from the earth. The sooner the German people realize that it is this, rather than British "imperialism" or American "internationalism," which stands between them and the peace so often promised and still so far away, the nearer they will be to the goal for which they fight today with such futility.

NEWS NOTES

Miss Marguerite Romeril was a bus passenger to Lethbridge on Saturday.

The schools had a holiday on Monday and Tuesday of this week while the staff of both public and High Schools attended Teacher's Convention in Lethbridge.

Elmo Christensen has an addition to his home nearly finished now, and just across the street Owen Larson is putting in the forms for his new home.

Winston Shaw and Mel Depew have their houses covered in and shingled and we see that Bob McMullin is busy finishing the interior of his new home.

The local Red Cross was busy last week packing our boys Xmas hampers for shipment overseas. A window display in the Cash Meat market over the week-end showed the contents of these parcels and was the centre of a great deal of interest. Included in the items were candy, chewing gum, a cake made by Mrs. J. W. Evans, peanut butter, a tin of sport, or other canned meat, or other items. Some of these items were donated, the remainder purchased by the Red Cross with funds earmarked in recent drives for this purpose.

Mrs. Shirley King was a Lethbridge visitor Saturday last.

Bishop A. D. Erickson of Stirling, was a Raymond visitor Monday this week.

Teams and tractors both have been about town this week plowing and discing down gardens in preparation for spring planting.

Tuesday next is Armistice Day and a Dominion holiday. Stores and offices in town will be closed for the day.

The 2nd Ward Gleaners and M Men held a fireside hour Sunday evening at the Jas. H. Walker home. A large crowd was present and greatly enjoyed the talk Elder Farrell Nelson, recently returned from the Canadian Mission who spoke on some of his missionary experiences.

The Toole, Utah, "Transcript-Bulletin" of October 21st, carries the announcement of the funeral services of Mrs. Emmra Bevan, aged 80, who died there. Mrs. Bevan was the President of the first Relief Society organized in Raymond after the ward was set up and will no doubt be remembered well by many of the pioneers of our town. The family lived here from 1900 to 1912 when they returned to Toole to make their home.

AUCTION SALE MONDAY

Just in case you have not happened to see the bills, an auction sale of more than 200 head of draft and saddle horses is being held at the Kirkaldy Ranch next Monday, starting at 10 a.m. There will be lunch served at noon so that the day can be spent there.

Ray Knight is cutting down his large herd of horses, and the ones selected will be sold regardless of price. Pete LaValley will be auctioneer, so if you want a nice saddle horse, or can use another team of draft animals, head for the Kirkaldy, pick them out and buy them when they come up on the block.

Ladies Night At Rotary

The local Rotary Club met Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Taylor in Ladies' Night and enjoyed an evening of rare enjoyment in singing and viewing the special motion pictures of the great International Convention of Rotary held last June at Denver Colorado.

The film is being circulated from the Secretariat of Rotary in Chicago and is free to Clubs desiring to use it. Two reels of 16 mm. film was used and it shows the world wide character of Rotary because people from all countries of the world almost where Rotary is still functioning, were present, and took part in the Convention.

International President T. J. Davis of Butte Mon., was shown in his inaugural address, and District Governor Jack Abbott, of North Battleford, Sask., who will be visiting Raymond before many months was also in the picture in two or three places. Next year's Convention is scheduled for Toronto Ontario, and the "On to Canada" booth was a busy place as people were asking questions about transportation, accommodations and so on. The film is educational for all, and interesting, especially to Rotarians, for in it we met many of the men who have been making Rotary history during the past years.

Geo. H. Brewerton was Master technician for the show, and along with the Convention films showed a reel of Stampede pictures taken here which everyone enjoyed seeing.

During the evening Past President Frank R. Taylor made a presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Moses Formm of a lovely bed spread. Moses has recently joined the silent majority in marriage, and to pay tribute to his courage and to welcome the new Rotary Ann to the mysticisms of Rotary, this presentation was made.

A sing song preceded the films, and followed the delicious lunch which was served and just after midnight the party broke up to the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," "Auld Lang Syne" and the National anthem and thus closed another very pleasant and long to be remembered Ladies Night.

CONSCRIPT YOUR QUARTERS AND DOLLARS TO BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS.

This is just to remind our readers that Raymond's annual carnival, an event looked forward to by young and old will be held this year November 26th and 27th. Tickets are being sold now, and the machinery for organization is being oiled and started working, although with many squeaks as yet.

Sponsored again by the local Athletic Association and the Lions Club, the carnival will give all of us an opportunity to assist in community work and at the same time have a good evening of fun. The grand prize this year will be a lovely Chest-erfield, and here's hoping it goes to someone who can use it to advantage, and you may win it for a quarter. Remember the dates. We'll have more details later on.

THE SOLDIER

(By Rupert Brooks)

If I should die, think only this of me:
That there's some corner of a foreign field
That is forever England. There shall be
In that rich earth a richer dust concealed;
A dust whom England bore, shaped, made aware,
Gave, once, her flowers to love, her ways to roam,
A body of England's, breathing English air,
Washed by the rivers, blest by suns of home,
And think, this heart, all evil shed away,
A pulse in the eternal mind, no less
Gives somewhere back the thots by England given,
Her sights and sounds dreams happy as her day;
And laughter, learnt of friends; and gentleness,
In hearts at peace, under an English heaven.

ARMISTICE DAY

Tuesday is Armistice Day. Twenty-three years ago on the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, a peace was signed, the world, weary with war gave a sigh of relief, and the strain of four years of war relaxed and people then turned to the pursuit of peaceful occupations in a spirit of relaxation. The war was over. For many of the soldiers it had been over for months as they found graves in military cemeteries all over the battlefield, that is those who were buried. To the wives, mothers, fathers and brothers and sisters of the dead, it has never been over and never will be.

On Tuesday we pay tribute to the memory of the men who gave their lives that we may have it more abundantly. To wear a poppy is a small thing by which to commemorate such a sacrifice, and yet the spirit of "Flanders Fields" the spirit of sacrifice for others, is the only spirit by which lasting peace will ever come to the world, and the only way of life that will make the world worth the price our dead warriors have paid to bring us peace.

Our last war was bad. But it was child's play compared to what the world is seeing today. The blood that was spilled on the battlefields from 1914 to 18 was a mere trickle compared to the rivers of blood that flows today. The cruelty of the 1918 German was innocent compared to the human butchery of Hitler and his gang in the Nazi dominated countries of today. In observing Armistice Day this year, let us pray, and that sincerely, that when the carnage and slaughter of the present conflict is over we may have peace, lasting peace.

Standing on the side lines and reading of the slaughter taking place, one asks "Why?" We live in a world of civilized humans, where civilization has reached new heights in every field, where life can be lived in more enjoyment than ever before in the history of the world. And yet, in a moment, a madman, because of lust for power and a cunning brain, masses a nation behind him and throws the world into a maelstrom of slaughter, pillage, carnage and blood that makes past wars fade into insignificance. Where is the Christian way of life that a man should be such a brutal leader? Where is the brotherly love that the Nazarene exemplified on Calvary? What have we done? What might we do that the sacrifices of the past and those of the present might achieve their purpose in bringing the world to PEACE and brotherhood?

"DUNKERQUE"

New York, June 1.—Saturday (C.P.)—IN an editorial entitled simply "Dunkereque," the New York Times said today.

So long as the English tongue survives, the word Dunkereque will be spoken with reverence. For in that harbor, in such a hell as never blazed on earth before, at the end of a lost battle, the rags and blemishes that have hidden the soul of Democracy fell away. There, beaten but unconquered, in shining splendor, she faced the enemy.

They sent away the wounded first. Men died so that others could escape. It was not so simple a thing as courage, which

The Navy

As a fitting climax to the Canadian editors' tour, a day with the Royal Canadian Navy at Halifax had been arranged. To anyone who has visited Halifax in peace time, the transformation to its predominant war-time role as a key port on the Atlantic coast comes almost as a shock. The streets of Halifax are thronged with officers and ratings of the R.C.N., the harbor is lined with ships being readied for convoy, new buildings to accommodate the Navy's needs are going up on all sides, and the dockyard is a veritable beehive of activity as thousands of navy men are schooled for service on the seas.

Arriving at Halifax early in the morning, the editors were shown through King's College, the officers' training establishment, the Signalling School and the Admiralty House grounds.

the Nadis had in plenty. It was not so simple a thing as discipline, which can be hammered into men by a drill sergeant. It was not the result of careful planning, for there could have been little. It was the common man of the free countries rising in all his glory out of mill, office, factory, mine, farm and ship, applying to war the lessons learned when he went down the shaft to bring out trapped comrades, when he hurled the lifeboat through the surf, when he endured poverty and hard work for his children's sake.

This shining thing in the souls of free men, Hitler cannot command, or attain, or conquer. He has crushed it, where he could, from German hearts.

It is the great tradition of Democracy. It is the future of victory.

Canada At War

Proceeding to His Majesty's Canadian Dockyard, our party saw all phases of the technical training of the navy, including the gunnery school, ordnance artificers' shop, machine shops, anti-aircraft school and other departments of instruction. It is here that the officers and ratings receive their final training in gunnery, navigation, wireless telegraphy, signalling and able seamanship to fit them for their tasks. Stokers are taught their engineroom duties and there are schools for cooks, stewards and sickbay attendants. In one building the gunners were being trained on large naval guns. It was an unbelievable bedlam as the youngsters went through their paces, shouting and repeating orders and moving with speed and precision to their respective stations. Not all of these lads are Maritimers, in fact a great many pupils put seaward and went as early enough they take to the water like ducks.

Youth Predominates

Youth clearly has the call in the Canadian Navy. We met a 27-year old officer who is commander of a destroyer & another of about the same age in charge of a brand new Canadian corvette. Another lad of twenty-one, an officer on a destroyer, had already come unscathed through the horrors of Dunkirk, where he was in command of a yacht which made four round trips in taking off British soldiers. We visited the stores where depth charges and big naval torpedoes are housed. We were introduced to Commodore Jones, officer commanding the Atlantic Coast, and his staff, and were told the story of how convoys are assembled and shepherded across the Atlantic. It can be no secret that Halifax has a vital role in conveying merchant ships of Allied nations to beleaguered Britain and that the Royal Canadian Navy is playing a heroic part in this all important task, having already safely escorted thousands of ships and millions of tons of cargo to their destinations in the Mother Country.

Aboard a Destroyer

We had a real opportunity to view the busy harbor when two of the now famous fifty American destroyers were placed at our disposal for a tour of the harbor and a 25-mile run on to the broad Atlantic. Fortunately for the editors it was a calm day. During the run, depth charges were dropped and a smoke screen thrown out to add a realistic touch to the trip. The depth charges, rolled from the stern of the boat, threw dense cloud of spray high into the air and jarred the destroyer with terrific force. It is easy to see how they can play havoc with enemy submarines. The captain of the destroyer on which we made the harbor trip was a sturdy "sea dog", whose alert and ruddy countenance clearly reflected the spirit of the Navy. We learned that he had served aboard H.M.C.S. Fraser, the Canadian destroyer which went down in a collision

CBC Farm Commentators to Discuss Farmers' Problems November 10th

C B C Farm Broadcast commentators from across Canada will open National Farm Radio Forum in Toronto, November 10th at 9 p.m. EST. The occasion which brings the Farm Commentators to Toronto will be the first national meeting of members of the two-and-a-half year old Farm Broadcast Department. Commentators to be heard in the opening broadcast will be Eergus Murtie (left top), from British Columbia, Hugh Boyd (lower left), from the Prairies, Don Fairbairn (top right), from Ontario, and Ralph Marven (right centre), from the Maritimes. Living Historic Times With Canada

For just one year short of a century-and-a-quarter—124 dramatic, dynamic, historic years—the Bank of Montreal has lived, worked and watched with Canada.

The Bank has seen war come and peace go, peace come and war depart; shared Canada's struggle through every night of economic depression since 1817; rejoiced to see Canada always triumph over all adversity.

Founded two years after the Battle of Waterloo, the Bank witnessed the Crimean War, the Indian Mutiny, and, with other loyal Canadians, enlisted for the duration in the South African War and World War I, and now matches with the Dominion and the Empire in World War II.

Always, Canada has come through stronger, better, triumphant. May she so come through the present fiery trial. To this end we work and dedicate the institution's service, just as our 6000 loyal employees are working and dedicating their personal services.

Canada At War

vettes of smaller size have been built at Ontario ports. Each of the larger corvettes is heavily armed. They are plying a significant role in the Battle of the Atlantic. One shipyard alone has 1,800 men at work on corvettes and mine-sweepers and the counterpart will be found in many a Canadian shipyard. The corvette is not as graceful a ship as the destroyer but it is sturdy and impressive in appearance. Expansion of the Royal Canadian Navy is a whole in the last two years forms one of the epics of this war, embracing an increase from 13 to 276 ships and in personnel from 1,300 to 23,000 men, and the number is increasing every day. The navy's popularity with young Canadian manhood is proven by the steady stream of recruits pouring into Halifax and other naval training centres. Canada's Navy already has a proud record in this war. It will be enhanced as time marches on.

Women Lend a Hand

Just a word regarding the problem encountered by Halifax in meeting the needs of the thousands of naval ratings who are training for service there or who come ashore on leave. The women of Halifax, ably assisted in a financial way by various naval auxiliary services including the Navy League of Canada, are responding nobly to the call for canteens and wholesome recreation for the men. We visited three or four such buildings and found that the sailors were making liberal use of the conveniences and comforts provided for them. One small canteen alone had served as many as 25,000 meals in a month. Most of the leaders in this work are wives of naval officers who employ all their spare time in the arduous duties of fitting out and supervising canteens and restrooms. Halifax churches likewise are doing their bit to brighten the off-duty hours of the lads who man Canada's ships. One of the most striking proofs of expansion is the erection of two new naval hospitals adjoining the Halifax waterfront, which are great ly needed to supplement existing accommodation.

A happy culmination of the editors' visit to Halifax was the banquet tendered at Admiralty House to our party by Commodore Jones and his staff of distinguished officers and ship captains. Our spokesmen had a chance there to express appreciation of their gracious hospitality and to thank particularly Commander J. P. Connolly, M. C., V. D., Royal Naval Provost Marshal, who accompanied us on the tour. It was an occasion, too, to become acquainted with the sterling worth of Canada's men "who go down to the sea in ships."

Conclusion

In concluding this series of articles, we would like, on behalf of Canadian weekly newspapers to express to the Department of National Defence and to the officers of the General Staff, the R.C.A.F. and the Navy, as well as to the Directors of Public Information and Public Relations and their staffs, who took valuable time from their official duties at Ottawa to accompany us on the entire trip our sincere appreciation for a memorable journey. We would also give honorable mention to the Canadian National Railways. It is certain that the tour served the useful purpose of giving the editors clear conception of what Canada is doing in this war and thus of enabling them to pass on information to their readers. If we have painted too rosy a picture of the Dominion's war program it was not intentional. We simply recorded what we saw. There is ample time and place for criticism, such as the Federal Ministers have invited. No doubt the newspapers will do their duty in this regard as they have in the past. These articles have merely aimed at portraying the extent of Canada's achievements in the army, the war industry, the R.C.A.F. and the Navy. That defects, bottlenecks and extravagance still exist, there can be no doubt. The program is by no means perfect. It has grown so rapidly that no amount of supervision could coordinate and keep in hand the entire machine. We know that it has cost a colossal sum of money and that taxpayers are being asked to pay to the limit. But in developing the tools of war to defeat Hitler, monetary considerations must remain secondary.

We hold no brief for Canada's political government, but of one thing we can be sure, the leaders of Canada's military, air and naval forces, and the entrepreneurs of our war industries are the right men in the right place. They are keen, alert and on top of their jobs. If Canadian civilians will devote one fraction of the concentration and enthusiasm of these men to the war program, Canada's part in the Empire fight for survival will surely be a worthy one.

AUTUMN CLEAN-UP GARDENS IMPORTANT TO CONTROL INSECTS

Once again it is the time of the year to give consideration to the cleaning-up of the garden in preparation for the coming winter and, looking farther ahead, to the planting of vegetables and flowers next spring. Clean-up has come to be looked upon as an annual activity by most growers, although the temptation is to put off this chore until spring. This delay is a mistake for many reasons but chiefly because it favours the survival of different species of destructive insects which normally would be destroyed if crop remnants had been gathered up and buried the previous autumn, says A. G. Dustan, Division of Entomology, Science Service Dominion Department of Agriculture. Many insects, in different stages of development hibernate in, on, or under debris lying on the ground surface in the garden. One of the most injurious species attacking flowers, the tarnished plant bug, passes the winter as an adult beneath crop refuse not removed from the garden the previous autumn. Eggs of boring caterpillars, the bane of the gardener's existence, are laid in the late summer on grass and weeds. These do not hatch until the spring. Many garden pests overwinter as larvae or maggots in the stems and roots of plants, as for instance, the European corn borer. Cocoons of certain species may frequently be observed adhering to the leaves and stalks of plants just before freeze-up. All of these insects and there is a host of them, will emerge in the spring unless gathered up and burned before the next crop year.

In Ontario and Quebec, the hot dry summer experienced in 1941 was very favourable to the rapid growth and development of insects. As a result populations have built up to a point far in excess of the normal year, therefore, clean-up is if possible, more important than is usually the case and should receive special attention.

For results to be satisfactory, clean-up should be as thorough as is possible under the circumstances. Annuals should be pulled up by the roots, perennials cut as low to the ground as may be done with safety, all dead leaves raked up and dead limbs and twigs removed from trees and shrubs. Burning of such refuse is the best method of disposal, but if this is not possible it should be removed to a considerable distance from the garden and preferably buried.

Disposal of plant waste in the autumn is good garden practice, assists very materially in reducing insect populations, and should under no circumstances be neglected.

When their car crashed thru a bridge and fell 30 feet into six feet of water Mr. and Mrs. H. Horn and son Emil of Vulcan were all drowned. The tragedy occurred near Barons Saturday night as they were returning home from Lethbridge.

Mrs. M. W. Boyson is home again after spending the past seven months in Saskatchewan where she has been demonstrating Alberta Sugar and its uses for the Canadian Sugar Factories, Limited. She is looking fine and says she has had a really enjoyable time.

GOOD ADVERTISING IS LIFE BLOOD OF TRADE

Advertising when used intelligently, can be the life blood of a retail merchant's trade. Whether he is the butcher, baker, grocer, druggist or hardware dealer, this weapon can build his business from a struggling enterprise to an outstanding success. It has been done countless times; it is being done again today.

Your advertisement must be changed constantly to produce results. Perhaps you share the ridiculous belief that newspaper advertising doesn't pay, but for the sake of sweet charity you run an ad each week anyway. You pay no attention to it... neither does the public. It's money thrown away: if you want to help the cause of charity, you'd be better off to aid the Salvation Army.

Today's buyer is rational. He weighs merit with price. There's more money in his pocket so he's willing to pay a higher fee for a better product. Vacuum-packed coffee is worth the extra price which he couldn't pay in 1933. He's willing to let the unknown brand of sacked coffee rot away on its shelf... if you'll help him appreciate why vacuum-packed coffee is worth more money!

And that's where the price-quality combination enters the advertising picture.

Common sense dictates that you shall not advertise white shoes in October, nor woollen underwear in July. It is also essential that you keep in mind the type of person who will read your message... the person who most logically will buy the product you are about to advertise. By remembering these two points, the least imaginative should have little difficulty selecting the right items for any given season of the year.—Red Deer Advocate.

Miss Lucille Pyne and her mother of Warner spent a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Erickson and family.

Completing the installation of their public address system, the Raymond 2nd Ward has installed four set of earphones, with sound controls on the seats for the benefit and convenience of those who may be hard of hearing.
